HISTORY FOR MONTH OF JANUARY
G-3 Section, 14th Armored Division

With the opening of the month, the Division was not operating as a unit but several of its elements were on the line. CC"R" under the name of TASK FORCE HUDELSON was holding part of the VI Corps front around BARENTHAL.

The 62d Armored Infantry Battalion, 94th Cavalry Reconnaissance Squadron (Mecz), 500th Armored Field Artillery Battalion, one company of the 125th Armored Engineer Battalion and normal attachments of Signal personnel and Military Police plus other units outside of the Division made up the Force.

On the night of 31 December - 1 January, the enemy started their New Year's day attack and the 19th Armored Infantry Battalion and "A" Company of the 25th Tank Battalion was sent to reinforce Colonel Hudleson's Force.

This necessitated several changes in the Division assembly area around BOUXWILLER. CC"B", consisting of the 47th Tank Battalion, and the 25th Tank Battalion minus were sent North to the vicinity of INGWILLER - ROTHBACH - ZINSWILLER to guard the mountain passes.

CC"A" was still attached to the XV Corps and had not been under Division control since late in December.

On 2 January, the 62d Armored Infantry Battalion which had been with the Task Force, reverted to Division control. The Battalion had held off the blunt of the enemy's New Year's Eve attack and was disorganized. Lt. Col. Myers' battalion was ordered to assemble in the vicinity of ZINSWILLER. The 117th Cavalry Squadron, an outside unit, was also put under Division control by VI Corps order.

The 62d Armored Infantry Battalion had come under Division control at 1100. Later in the day all of the elements of TASK FORCE HUDELSON, including its Headquarters, which belonged to the 14th Armored Division was returned to Brigadier General Albert Cowper Smith's control.

However, all units outside of the 62d had a hard time disengaging after being relieved and it was several days before they were out of the line, especially the 19th Armored Infantry Battalion.

On 2 January, CC"A" was also returned to Division control by Seventh Army order and closed in the Division assembly area at 1655 after a difficult journey from the XV Corps' sector.

Upon arrival CC"A" (68th Armored Infantry Battalion and 48th Tank Battalion) took over the job of guarding passes into the VOSGES between WERTWILLER and INGWILLER. CC"B" continued to be responsible for the INGWILLER - ROTHBACH - ZINSWILLER zone.

The 500th and 501st Armored Field Artillery Battalions were placed in direct support of the 313th Infantry Regiment on 3 January. On the same date, the 499th Armored Field Artillery Battalion was placed in general support of the 45th Infantry Division.

4 January found very few changes in the Division. All units continued on their assigned missions except "D" Troop of the 94th Cavalry Squadron (Mecz) which was sent to WEYERSHEIM and attached to the 79th Infantry Division.

On the following day, "B" Company of the 47th Tank Battalion was attached to the 79th Infantry Division and sent to MARIENTHAL.

On the 6th of January, the general trend grew in stature and all of CC"A" was attached to the 79th Infantry Division. Consisting of the 48th Tank Battalion, 68th Armored Infantry Battalion, 500th Armored Field Artillery Battalion, "C" Company of the 125th Armored Engineer Battalion, "C" Troop of the 94th Cavalry Reconnaissance Squadron (Mecz) plus normal attachments of Signalmen and Military Police, the Combat Command marched to an assembly area in the vicinity of SOULTZ-sous-FORET.

On January 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th, there were no changes in the missions of the Division. The remaining elements continued to guard mountain passes and conduct patrols.

The Division (-) was on the move on January 11th. The 14th Armored Division moved from BOUXWILLER to an assembly area to the East and Northeast in the vicinity of MORSBRONN-LES-BAINS - WOERTH. It was from this assembly area that the Division was to move into battle of RITTERSHOFFEN - HATTEN and play a large part in saving the Alsace plain against the major German thrust.

The Division attacked on the 12th and although CC"A" had been fighting in RITTERSHOFFEN for several days under the control of the 79th Infantry Division, it reverted to 14th Armored Division control with the commitment of CC"B" and CC"R" in the area.

CC"A" attacked RITTERSHOFFEN at dawn. By 1230, its elements had advanced 400 yards into town. The 68th Armored Infantry Battalion made contact with the 3d Battalion of the 315th which had been cut off.

~~R-E-S-T-R-I-C-T-E-D~~

House to house fighting was bitter all day and by 1900 CC"A" had cleared the western half of the town against stubborn and attacking enemy.

CC"A" had to withdraw the 48's tanks to NEIDERBETZDORF under cover of darkness to re-supply and re-fuel.

CC"B" also had a difficult time during the day. The Combat Command had attacked East from the vicinity of HOHWILLER at 1130. Heavy artillery and mortar fire was received and three tanks were lost to AT fire. Elements of the 62d Armored Infantry Battalion fought their way to a position 300 yards north of HATTEN but were forced to withdraw to a line RITTERSHOFFEN - LEITERSWILLER by heavy artillery, mortar and small arms fire.

CC"R" was not committed the first day but was later to have the toughest fights during the battle.

The attack was continued on the 13th. CC"A" plus the 3d Battalion, 315th Infantry moved at 0800. They advanced against heavy small arms, artillery and mortar fire to the enemy strong-point in the church in the eastern part of town. The 48th Tank Battalion attacked the southern part of town and cut the RITTERSHOFFEN - HATTEN road.

At 2115, the enemy counter-attacked with infantry and flame-throwing tanks. The Germans made a slight penetration but the attack was stopped and the main defenses remained intact.

In the meantime, during the day, CC"B" attacked HATTEN three times from the north. CC"R" was attacking from the south. CC"B" succeeded in penetrating but was later forced to withdraw to the previous day's positions by heavy anti-tank fire from RITTERSHOFFEN, HATTEN, BUHL and STUNDWILLER.

CC"R" entered the fray with a vengeance on the 13th. The Combat Command jumped off at 0800. Attacking HATTEN from the south and southwest and in the face of intense small arms, artillery and mortar fire succeeded in getting three companies and two platoons of "D" Company, 47th Tank Battalion into the southern part of HATTEN at 1645.

The 2d Battalion of the 315th Infantry Regiment had been cut off for several days and contact was made in the town.

For the next six days battles raged in the two towns without let down. We kept attacking and the enemy kept counter-attacking. We failed to re-establish the MLR east of HATTEN but in turn stopped some of Germany's best troops, the 10th Panzer, the 25th Panzer Grenadier and the 7th Parachute Divisions from breaking through and over running the Alsace Plain in a major Rundstedt offense.

On the 14th, CC"A" renewed the attack at 0900. Made slight gains and then repulsed an enemy infantry and tank attack at 1430.

CC"B" maintained defensive positions and supported the attack of CC"A" and CC"R" with fire.

CC"R" launched its attack at 0800. Advanced steadily during the day but an enemy counter-attack at 2230 forced CC"R" to withdraw to the previous night's positions.

Slow but steady progress was made on the 15th by CC"A" and CC"R" with CC"B" again supporting. CC"R" received four separate counter-attacks. Stopped all four without gain and piled the enemy dead high.

On the 16th, CC"R" again attacked at 0800 and occupied two-thirds of HATTEN. Enemy pressure increased late in the afternoon from north and northeast, developing into a counter-attack of estimated Battalion strength at 1715. The Germans used Automatic weapons, flame-throwers, rocket launchers, tanks and self-propelled guns.

The counter-attack was stopped and CC"R" reorganized to continue the advance the next day.

CC"A" and CC"R" with CC"B" supporting by fire continued to attack on the 17th, 18th and 19th. Progress was slow but steady.

On the 20th the order to withdraw to the new HAGUENAU line was received from VI Corps.

The withdrawal was made on the night of January 20-21 without incident.

CC"A" covered the withdrawal of the 79th Infantry Division from RITTERSHOFFEN to the HAGUENAU-PFAFFENHOFFEN line and reverted to division control at 1500. Closed in vicinity of WILWISHEIM at 1800. CC"B" completed withdrawal to vicinity FURCHAUSEN at 1300. CC"R" closed in vicinity of WOLSCHEIM at 1015. Division Artillery reinforced the fires of the 79th and 103d Divisions during the withdrawal.

The division CP closed at MORSEBRONN-les-BAINS and opened at DETTWILLER at 0515.

The 25th Tank Battalion which had been attached to VIth Corps on January 19th reverted to Division control and was put in Combat Command "B" at 1800 the same day.

On the 22d C Company of the 25th was attached to the 79th Infantry Division at 1800. Troops B and D of the 94th Cavalry Reconnaissance Squadron (Mecz) was ordered to relieve the 12th Armored Division screening the Corps South boundary along the line OLWISHEIM-

MARLENHEIM. C Troop was attached to the 35th AAA Brigade.

CC"B" moved to vicinity of MOMMENHEIM on the 23d.

On the 24th no change was made in the Division which was resting and refitting but on the 25th CC"B" was attached to the 79th Division.

CC"B" returned to Division control the next day but in the meantime had helped to restore the new MLR which the enemy had succeeded in penetrating the night before.

A Company, of the 47th Tank Battalion relieved C Company, 25th Tank Battalion which was attached to the 79th on January 27. The 499th was supporting the fires of the 101st Airborne Division, 500th AFA the 103d and the 501st the 36th Infantry Division.

All other units of the Division were rehabilitating, refitting, and training.

No changes were effected on the 28th and 29th but on the 30th one platoon of D Company, 47th Tank Battalion, was attached to the 79th Infantry Division and on the 31st CC"B" was attached to the 36th Division.

Enemy Activity:

Ey artillery much lighter than before due partly to extensive Corps, C/B program. 40 to 50 rds of artillery was reported falling on each of the following towns: Fuhlendorf, Rittershoffen, Neiderbetschdorf, and Leiterswiller. Continued stiff resistance was encountered in Rittershoffen, as house to house fighting took place in many instances. The enemy center of resistance was around the church. Our Inf was repulsed slightly in a couple of instances by SS's, SS's and tanks. From Hatten, our Inf were routed out of a couple of buildings by the "Heinies" using bazookas to blow holes thru the side of the buildings, then using flame throwers on tanks to route them out.

Enemy Activity:

EY artillery increased during this period around Puhlen-dorf and Schonenburg. Nebelweffers located and fired on by our ACP. Ey armor active during this period, and two C/A broken up by our artillery. An estimated 1000 to 1500 Ey dug in, in Hatten.

A new ammunition allowance of 30 rds per gun per day of 105 mm ammo was established by VI Corps.

By Special Orders #16, Headquarters Seventh Army, dated 16 January, 1st Lt. Richard H Cloud, O1176284, FA, was promoted temporarily to the grade of Captain.

Enemy Activity:

Ey artillery generally less active during this period. Ey armor kept our infantry busy with harassing fire. At 0920, an Ey attack consisting of Inf and tanks was broken up by our Artillery fire. Considerable activity was noted in orchard N of Rittershoffen. A "TOT" was fired on this spot when the Ey put up a smoke screen around the orchard.

501st AFA Bn:

501st AFA Bn: CP enroute to Ettendorf, Q9323. Mission: Returned to Div Arty, reinforcing fires of 79th. Fires: No report.
Enemy Activity:

Considerable enemy traffic was heard throughout early morning near Rittershoffen and Hatten, and an unusual amount of vehicular traffic on the Buhl road. Scattered mortar fire throughout the day.

The Div Arty Commander was ordered to report to Corps Artillery Officer, with Bn Commanders, relative to plans to withdraw to position areas S of Hagenu Forest, in keeping with the Corps plan of straightening our line and protecting our right flank against an enemy threat from that direction. Pop was assigned the mission: "Direct support CCA", who was covering the withdrawal of the 79th Div. The withdrawal was made under most adverse weather conditions of ice and snow without loss of a single vehicle or any equipment. The Germans were evidently taken completely by surprise, as no harassing fires were received even though the icy roads were jammed with vehicles. It is the opinion of most of the VC's that the "Heinies" were withdrawing their forces when we received orders from Higher Headquarters also to withdraw.

The Div Arty Commander was called to Div Hq where he received the following citation:

GENERAL ORDERS # 8, Hq 14th Armored Div, 30 January 1945:

III. AWARD OF THE BRONZE STAR MEDAL.

By direction of the President, under the provisions of Army Regulations 600-45, 22 September 1943 as amended, the Bronze Star Medal is awarded by the Division Commander to the following named individuals:

MAURICE K. MURTZ, O12313, Colonel, Field Artillery, 14th Armored Division Artillery. For meritorious service near Rittershoffen, France and Hatten, France, from 6 January 1945 to 20 January 1945. Entered United States Military Academy from Iowa.

In summary of the months operation, the Div Arty was in the line continuously, supporting the 45th Inf Div in its operations against the German thrust E of Bitché. Later, they were taken away from the 45th Div and sent to restore our MLR generally along the Maginot Defense NE of Soultz, in the vicinity of Hatten and Rittershoffen, where they took part in some of the fiercest fighting of the war to date. After the main battle around these two towns, it was decided to pull the whole VI Corps front back S of the Hagenu Forest to shorten our lines and protect our right (East) flank from the Rhine. The weather during the whole period was marked by continuous snow flurries, with a couple good snow storms seriously hampering the use of our Air CP's. The following is a summary of the amount of ammunition fired to date:

G-4 History - January 1945

In the early hours of the morning of 1 January 1945 the enemy overran Task Force Hudelson at Barenthal. Division Trains had been alerted just prior to the first of the year to move to the other side of the Vosges through the Saverne Gap, the move being essentially completed before the enemy took the offensive. This offensive cost T. F. Hudelson (62nd Arm Inf Bn, 500th Arm FA Bn, 94th & 117th Cavalry Reconnaissance Squadron (Mech), Co's A & B of the 125th Arm Engr Bn) the following major items of equipment:

Action for the replacement of equipment lost by the 14th Armored Division was initiated immediately, and full assistance was offered the 117th in re-equipping, including the use of our maintenance facilities. They elected to make their own contacts with Army for the replacement of equipment completely lost. However, they used our maintenance shops to service their remaining equipment, the first time they had had the majority of it in 3rd Echelon shops since they had established contact with the enemy on the beachhead in August of 1944.

Co B of the 47th Tank Bn was attached to the 79th Division operating in the Gamsheim area, and lost 6 tanks in this operation, one being replaced before they returned to division control. This replacement was the first Tank, Medium, M4A3 T8, issued the division (this same tank was destroyed at Hatten).

The division established contact with the enemy in the Hatten-Rittershoffen sector on January 12. During this operation our tank flame thrower was put into operation. The balance of the nine (9) authorized tank flame throwers were installed before the end of January.
